

Overview

1. The issue?

Should active voluntary euthanasia be legalised?

2. The context?

Legalising euthanasia would mean legalising "suicide", the life we live is not so cheap to end it whenever we want. We as humans shouldn't be given the privilege to end life. However, many others say that euthanasia is a freedom and human right, no one should be forced to live life when they don't want to.

3. The viewpoint on the issue?

The majority of public think that euthanasia should be legalised, patients who have no cure to disease should be given an option of active voluntary euthanasia. It is not fair to make someone live their life with pain and depression. People should be able to choose when to die and under what circumstances.

4. Your viewpoint on the issue?

Active voluntary euthanasia should not be legalised because this would be too much power mankind has on life. It also leads to many people with minor mental disorders feel the need to end their life when the disease they have can be cured. It is beyond the rights of humans to choose when to "die".
